SUMMER SCHOOL PANTRY PARTICIPANTS SURVEY

Families stated the two main reasons it was harder to feed their children during the summer were:

Increased childcare needs and costs
No access to free or reduced school meals

95%

of those surveyed responded that the pantry made them feel less stressed about feeding their family.

Are you satisfied with the services provided at this pantry?

“With three teenagers, my food bill was already high, and with all the prices going up, I have only been able to buy the bare minimum and supplement it with what I get here. I appreciate what I get here so much. Our family would not have much to eat without this.”

I have been coming here since the Alta Vista summer camp started this year. The teachers at the school told me about the program, that I could get food and they could help me out, so I could better care for my family. It has been very helpful.

I would ask Food Bank supporters to please keep helping families. During the summer, especially, they are helping not just me but so many families so we that have enough to eat. This program helps so many families who really need the help right now.
